SONS of NORWAY

PRESIDENT NORM'S COLUMN:

Greetings!

November is the start of what often seems like one big, long holiday season. Before you get to our National Day of Thanksgiving, do plan to attend our Viking Fest on the 19th. We were fortunate this year to have the Scandinavian Festival after a two-year hiatus. First reports are that we had attendance levels nearly that of 2019 levels. We hope to have similar results at the Viking Fest. Come, enjoy and practice loosening your wallets in preparation for the holiday season ahead.

Norway has found itself very involved in the current tensions brought on by Russia's efforts at intimidation. Four Russian nationals were arrested for photographing classified facilities. Additionally, unidentified drones have been reported circling North Sea oil platforms. Previously police had arrested a man with Israeli and Russian passports heading to Finland with drones and video footage of classified military sites. A fishing agreement between Norway and Russia to protect and manage the cod fishing in the far North Sea is in limbo due to Russia insisting that their fishing vessels can use Norwegian ports. The not-so-subtle Russian art of Bullying is at play. It would be good to include Norway in your prayers for peace. See you at the Viking Fest! Norm

RUSSIANS ARRESTED FOR FLYING DRONES

OVER NORWEGIAN FACILITIES

Recently Norwegian officials warned that more arrests were likely after at least seven Russians — including the son of a close associate of Russian President Vladimir Putin — were detained for flying drones or taking pictures near sensitive areas in Norway, prompting an investigation by the domestic intelligence service. In at least one instance, a drone was spotted near the Bergen airport, which temporarily shut down air traffic.

Typical drone

The man referred to above is the son of Vladimir Yakunin, a Putin confidant who once was arrested in the United States. The Norwegian police seized drones and electronic devices from the younger Yakunin. As of October 28, the Russians were still being held.

TUBFRIM WASHES ITS LAST STAMP...

Some of our newer, younger members may not be aware that people used to communicate in written form, not by email or text message, but in something called a letter*. A communicator often would take fountain pen - okay, ball point pen – in hand and actually hand-write individual letters onto a blank piece of paper that when properly assembled formed words. To send this communication to a fellow communicant, one had to put it into an envelope, affix to the envelope something called a “stamp” that he/she/etc. purchased from the post office, and then put the letter in a post office “box.” The post office would then, in its own sweet time, deliver it to the recipient.

In past years people were not answering emails all day and so they had time to devote to a hobby, and one such hobby was being a “stamp collector.” This created a demand for stamps from all over the world, and a Norwegian charity formed an organization called TUBFRIM to collect, wash, and otherwise recondition stamps that it then sold to collectors to raise money for its charitable purposes. Therefore, many Sons of Norway lodges collected used stamps from mailings, packaged them in bundles and sent them to Norwegian Seamen’s churches so that the churches in turn could dispatch them to Norway on Norwegian freighters that called at their respective ports.

But alas; so few non-machine stamps are used in this day and age that TUBFRIM is closing down their stamp operation. What happens to all of its employees? Well, it is only a rumor that the former stamp-washers will now make their living washing checks.

*Yes, this is confusing. A letter is actually composed of letters used to form words. Go figure.

TUBFRIM is an acronym for something, but the editor was too lazy to look it up. The organization was formed in 1928 to raise money to combat child tuberculosis, and later helped combat with other childhood diseases. It was quite successful in its day.

You can buy 10 of these, used, for about 7 bucks on the internet.

TACO TUESDAY NIGHT

The lodge's Taco Tuesday Night this past October 11th was at least a modest success. Trying to emulate what has become a tradition of sorts in Norway, we served tacos prepared by Senora Tove-Lise Miller and other good mujeres de los Ustados Unidos on this particular Tuesday evening. Your editor counted about 100 in attendance but he accepts the criticism that he might have counted some vaqueros more than once.

The participants were treated to the rather irreverent movie entitled the The Lutefisk Wars, which happily satirized more than one special interest or religious group. The one take-away from the movie, in the editor's opinion, was that Norwegian-Americans in the upper Midwestern part of the United States care more about Lutefisk than Norwegians in Norway do. (Do you suppose that we Norwegian-Americans living here in California appear to be just a touch condescending?)

In the opinion of the Editor, we might try this again sometime, but we may use Reindeer meat instead of ground beef in the tacos as a salute to the native land.

(Actually, in Norway, Taco Tuesday more often happens on Friday.)

FESTIVE SACANDINAVIAN FESTIVAL

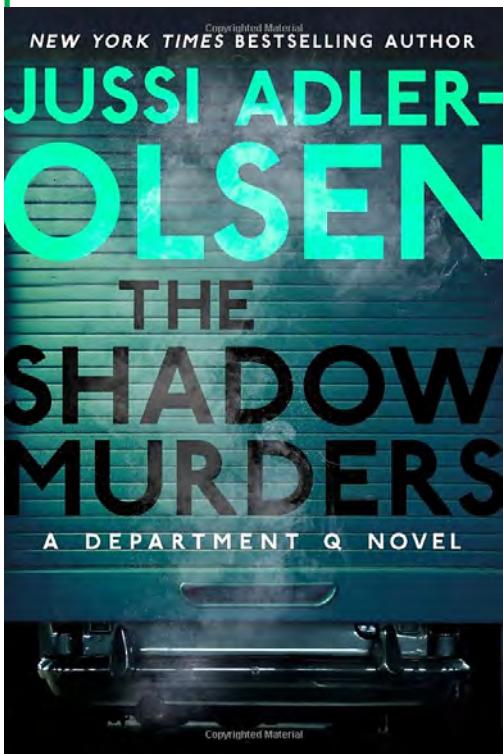

Norwegian flag bearer Wyatt Mattes, age 14. Lodge participants in front of Viking ship. Tove-Lise Miller, Betty Williamson and Fred Hymans at the lodge table.

Over 1000 enjoyed the Scandinavian Festival last month. This cultural event represented Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway, the Sami and Sweden. Delicacies from each country as well as crafts were featured. Even a group of Vikings and our lodge's Viking Ship made appearances. Volunteers from Sons of Norway included Tove-Lise Miller, Mike and Donna Gordon, Wyatt and Kristi Mattes, Arlene Kozub, Betty Williamson, Peggy Hyde, the Hales family, Mike Jones, Rick Stultz, Carol Francis, Pat Harriman and Fred Hymans. It was a fun and successful day. The next Scandinavian Festival will be at the Scottish Rite Masonic Center in the River Park area of Sacramento on April 15, 2023. - Donna Gordon

New Scandinavian Book

THE SHADOW MURDERS: A Department Q Novel

A new murder mystery by Danish author Jussi Adler-Olsen has been available since September. The English translation was rendered by William Frost. The book description from Amazon:

"In the exhilarating penultimate thriller of the New York Times and #1 internationally bestselling Department Q series, the team must hunt for a nefarious criminal who has slipped under the radar for decades.

"On her sixtieth birthday, a woman takes her own life. When the case lands on Detective Carl Mørck's desk, he can't imagine what this has to do with Department Q, Copenhagen's cold cases division since the cause of death seems apparent. However, his superior, Marcus Jacobsen, is convinced that this is related to an unsolved case that has been plaguing him since 1988.

"At Marcus's behest, Carl and the Department Q gang—Rose, Assad, and Gordon—reluctantly begin to investigate. And they quickly discover that Marcus is onto something: Every two years for the past three decades, there have been unusual, impeccably timed deaths with connections between them that cannot be ignored, including mysterious piles of salt at the scenes. As the investigation goes deeper, it emerges that these "accidents" are in fact part of a sinister murder scheme.

"Faced with their toughest case yet, made only more difficult by COVID-19 restrictions and the challenges of their personal lives, the Department Q team must race to find the culprit before the next murder is committed, as it is becoming increasingly clear that the killer is far from finished."

Kindle version $15. Seems like a fun read for book clubs!
